HARVEST TIME

Do you remember harvesting by moonlight? Before combines had their own lights, farmers often used the light from the Harvest Moon to cut, swath or thresh grain far into the night.

This year's Harvest Moon will take place on September 20. This one is especially notable because it will be the fourth full moon of the summer. Ordinarily, each season of the year has three full moons; however, every few years, an extra full moon appears in a calendar year. The last time a harvest moon coincided with one of these additional full moons was in 2013.
